NONE: Institution will not/cannot participate in the CAG under any circumstance	4	6%

Non-CAG Survey Conclusions

Definitive Conclusion

Public programs are adopting CAG more quickly than private programs.

Anecdotal Conclusions

- CAG has impacted timing of “melt”
- More applicants declined offers earlier (March 1) than in subsequent months.
- Impact of deadline extensions (post-March 1) needs to be determined.

PharmCAS Applicant Survey Results

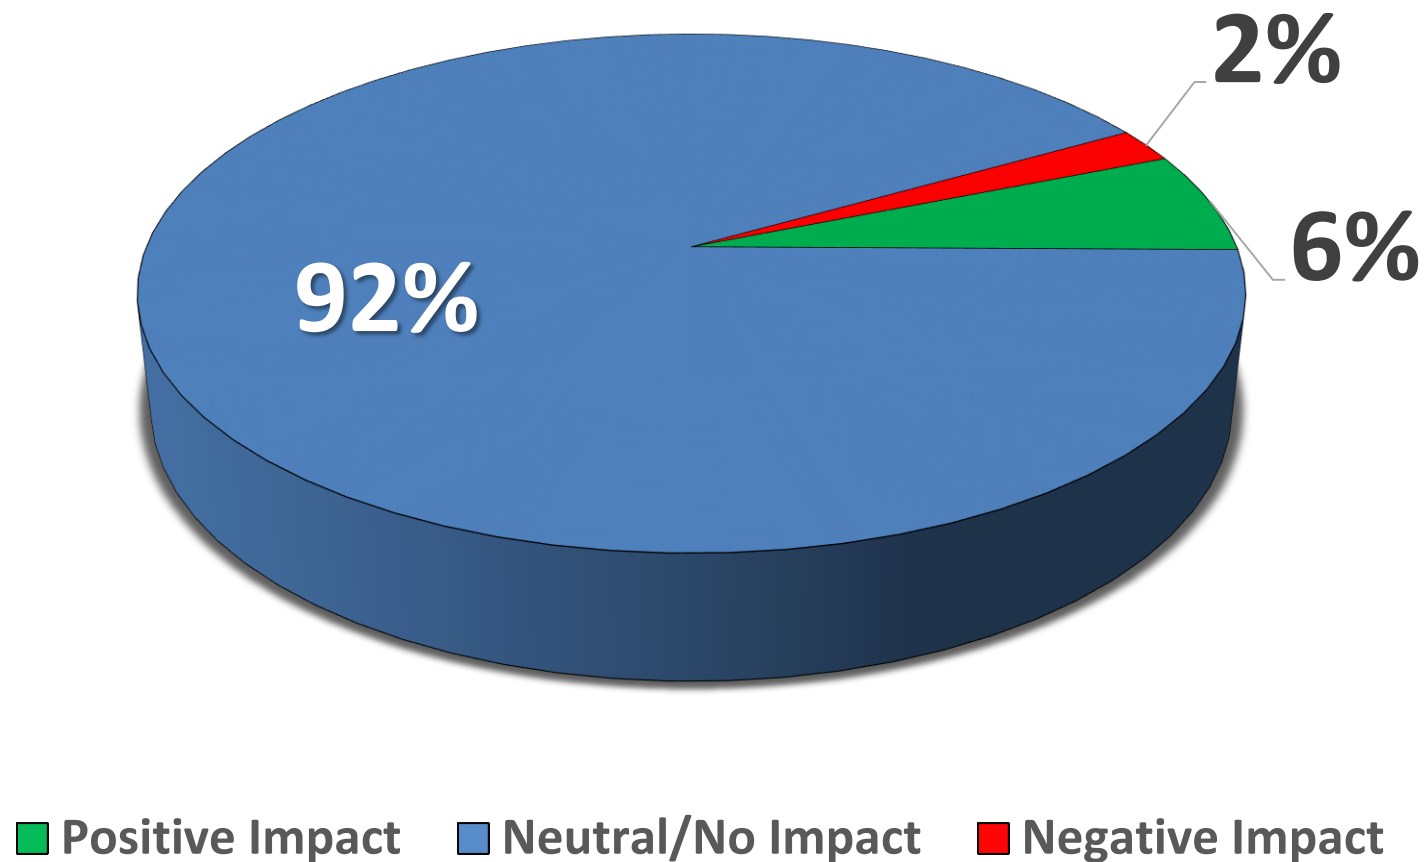

Q1: Are you familiar with the CAGs?

Q2: Did you apply to any CAG schools?

Q3: How did the CAG impact your admissions experience?

Q4: Do you recommend that pharmacy schools participate in CAG in the future?

Conclusions

Definitive conclusion

- The majority of applicants don't know what the CAGs are

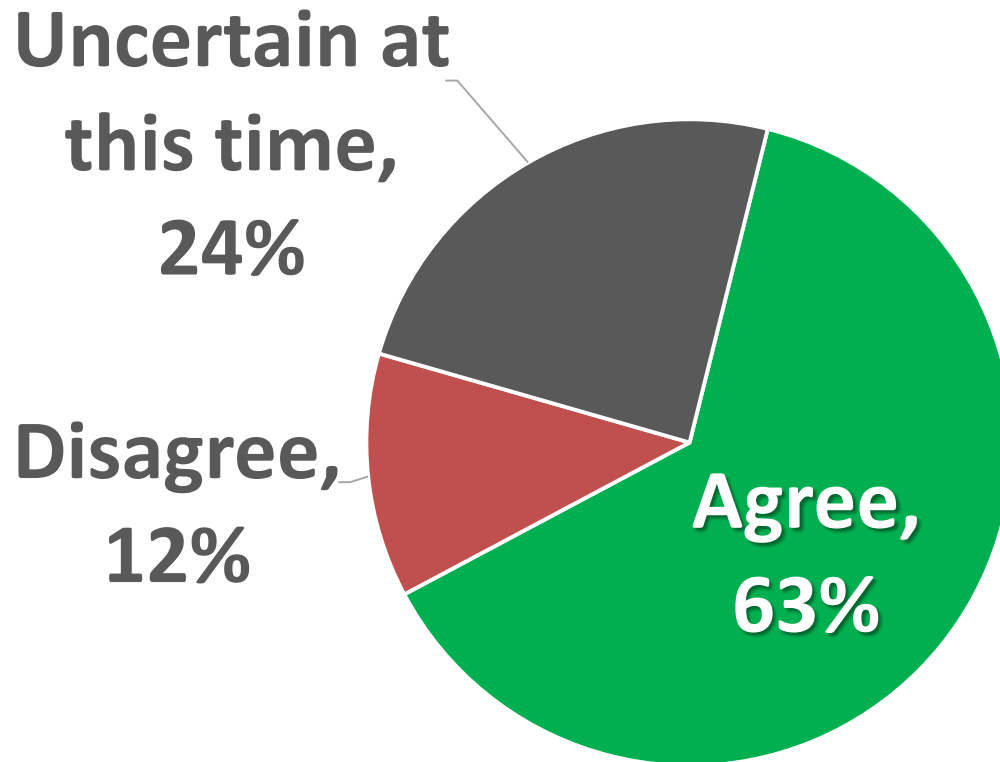

Anecdotal conclusions

- Even for those with a basic understanding, there is still lots of confusion
 - School deadlines and how they impact CAGs, especially after March 1.
 - Purpose of CAGs and why all schools aren't participating.
- For those who seemed to understand the CAGs, there were many positive comments.

Summary of Open Comments

Deposits

- Many schools had different deposit amounts instead of a holding deposit of $200 and a final or confirmation deposit
- Amount of second deposit ranged from $150-$800
- Current deposit amount too low for students to make a serious commitment
- No deposits until after March 1 to lessen burden for students

Summary of Open Comments

Communications

- Communication should be transparent and included on website and interview days
- Important to share intent and purpose
- Recruitment increased to students with multiple offers
- Increased communication to students on shared offers accepted list to help with decision making

Discussion Questions

Decision Deadline Dates

- Should we change the date to April 1?
- Does a decision date work when you extend the application deadline?
- How is melt affected by the decision date?

Discussion Questions

- How should schools manage applicants holding multiple acceptances after March 1?
- How should schools communicate with applicants who are accepted after March 1?
- How should schools communicate to applicants about the CAGs?
- How are schools tracking shared acceptances in WebAdMIT?
